Harrington Communications Wins Six Awards in Prestigious International Design Competition

GROSSE POINTE WOODS, Mich. – Harrington Communications, a Grosse Pointe Woods based marketing and design firm, recently won six awards in the Hermes Creative Awards 2009 international competition.

Harrington Communications received Platinum Awards for an annual report developed for the Detroit RiverFront Conservancy and integrated branding campaigns for both Cambridge Consulting Group and The Cedars of Dexter. The company also received a Gold Award for an animated brochure designed for Administar Services Group, and two Honorable Mentions for an invitation for Administar and branding for MedEx Pack.

“We’re excited to have won six Hermes awards this year,” said Heather Harrington, President. “We work hard to develop the absolute best marketing solutions for our clients, and we’re happy to celebrate this success with them.”

The 2009 international Hermes Award had over 3,700 entries throughout the United States and several other countries. Harrington Communications work was judged for excellence among work submitted by corporate marketing and communication departments, advertising agencies, PR firms, design shops, production companies and freelance submissions.

Harrington Communications is a strategic communications and design firm that supports a diverse mix of clients in the legal, medical, telecommunications, professional service, and technology industries. The agency provides a variety of services including branding, advertising, public relations, website and collateral development and more.
